Building violators BEWARE!

Building violations to attract double penalty

K.H. Jagadeesha, MCC Commissioner

Mysuru, June 4 (RK&BCT)- Property owners, beware. If you have any violations in your buildings and if there are any differences between the Approved Plan and the Completion Report (CR), you will have to pay double the penalty. The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) has already begun the process of levying fines for violations at all zones where the property identification surveys have been completed.

Speaking to Star of Mysore, MCC Commissioner K.H. Jagadeesha said that violators will not be spared and the civic body is aiming to boost its revenue. "Last September, the State Urban Development Department had asked all City Corporations and Municipalities to levy penalty on building (CR) violations and later it was decided to levy double the penalty," he said.

The MCC can levy penalties under Karnataka Municipal Corporations Act, 1976, Column 112 (C). "When the Urban Development Department notification was issued, we had sought clarification on the penalty and at that time, officials told us that penalty can be doubled," he said.

For example, if a person is paying Rs. 1,000 as property tax for a particular property and if there are violations in the building, till now the MCC was levying a penalty of Rs. 1,000. So the tax amount and the penalty would come up to Rs. 2,000. Now since the MCC has got powers to double the penalty amount, it will levy Rs. 2,000 plus the property tax of Rs. 1,000, explained an official from the MCC.

There are over 1,97,500 properties in Mysuru that includes residential, commercial and revenue. And most of the revenue properties are illegal and are riddled with violations. "The MCC has completed a survey of 80 percent of the properties and have started collecting taxes and penalties for violation," the Commissioner said.

Chunchanakatte (K.R. Nagar Taluk), June 4 (Madhu,RK&KS)- The Sunday getaway to the Chunchanakatte Falls turned tragic to the family of a Scientist at Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI) in Mysuru when he was washed away in the strong current at the Falls yesterday afternoon.

Tryst with technology Spoils of science

Emergence of the wheel and fire, both of which are so ubiquitous that hardly anyone spares time to think or talk about them have their origins in times of an undetermined date in the distant past, given the accepted feature that humans have made planet earth their home for over nearly two lakh years. The insatiable desire of humans to make life comfortable by perceiving and meeting the needs as well as enjoying life's luxuries over centuries leading to countless technologies and landmark advances in science may have prompted some thinker to spell the idiom Necessity is the mother of invention. We have reached a stage in which the line demarcating necessities and luxuries has virtually disappeared. The two never-to-be-missed products of science-technology combo namely (a) Mobile phone (with its current avatar smart phone) and (b) Television (with its presence in residences of people cutting across the entire cross section of society) may suffice to justify the above remark of luxuries of yesterday morphing into necessities of today.

Clarion calls continue to be heard from various platforms asking the country's youth in particular to cultivate scientific temper while India is touted to be among the top few countries hosting University graduates in Science subjects. The land's people, on the other hand, are greeting products of advancing technologies, mostly from other parts of the globe, with disdain, keeping their tryst with technology without a care and the consequences are beyond words.

Being awarded the Nobel Prize in the two branches of Science as well as Medicine is accepted as the benchmark of excellence for any awardee and the respective country. India has had only one home grown Nobel Laureate while other two or three awardees of Indian origin have earned credit for their adopted country but not their motherland as it were. As a renowned Science writer, a highly rated scientist himself, has observed, while 80 countries across three continents gained freedom from the rule of different colonialists, "India was the lone nation that made friends with Science as a policy for the country's development. While the lay sections of the land's population cannot be expected to notice the connect between scientific pursuits and nation's development, the cognoscenti can testify to the beneficial spoils of Science in many fields such as agriculture, industry and healthcare, not to forget the area of communication aided by inputs from space exploration.

Having acknowledged the gains of advances in Science and Technology made possible by the leading lights of the past near era, one is obliged not to forget the often heard lament of declining quality of University education. In that context, one cannot be faulted to suggest the earlier the academic sector is freed from the influence of elected representatives of people, the better.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Recently someone came up with an ingenious way of bribing a politician. It was breathtakingly simple. A family member of a powerful politician formed a new company with no assets, no products and offered no service. Yet, it was somehow valued by an "investor" in thousands of crore of rupees. Based on that inflated valuation, he invested hundreds of crore of cash in this company for worthless equity. At some later date, this investor or a related entity was awarded a large public contract by the politician. At some point, the start-up company went bankrupt and investor "lost" his investment in the company with the promoter skimming off the funds. This led to a chain reaction that may well cripple the technology start-ups. — Hemant Kanakia in Business Standard.

1,230-years-old, still growing!

Calabria: A team of researchers studying a National Park in Southern Italy recently discovered the oldest tree in Europe ever to be scientifically dated – a Heldreich's pine that is at least 1,230 years old and still growing.

Nicknamed "Italus", the ancient tree was discovered on a steep mountain slope in Italy's Pollino National Park by a team of researchers led by Gianluca Povesan. "The inner part of the wood was like dust—we never saw anything like it," A member of the team said. "There were at least 20 centimetres of wood missing, which represents a lot of years." After analyzing the collected samples, researchers concluded that Italus was at least 1,230 years old.

Psychic claims to smell death on people !

New South Wales: A 24-year-old psychic from New South Wales, Australia, claims to have a very unusual clairvoyant gift – she can tell if people are about to die just by taking a whiff of them.

Ari Kala, the self-described 'psychic coach' apparently discovered her unique talent when she was just 12-years-old, while visiting her terminally-ill uncle. She recalls picking up an odd smell in his house the night before he died and thinking it was his remains. However nobody else could smell it, and Kala says that the "odd, sickly sweet rotten kind of smell" turned out to be that of imminent death, which she would detect countless times throughout her life, especially among people with terminal diseases and the elderly.

Being able to predict death is not only macabre, but also pretty much useless, at least according to the 24-year-old psychic. She claims that by the time she is able to smell death on them, these people are beyond help, so telling them that they're going to die doesn't make much sense.

Unsafe spot for boarding trains at City Railway Station

Sir,

I travelled from Mysuru to KSR Bengaluru today by Train number 12613 and am on my way to Hyderabad.

I had a bitter experience while boarding the train this morning. D1 coach (in which my seat was reserved) was stationed nearby the water pre-cooling plant (around 5th position engine). Due to steep curve of the Railway line, the D1 coach stood tilted away from the platform nearly by two feet.

Being used to frequent travel I boarded the coach in the normal way, unaware of the dangerous gap between the steps and the platform. I lost balance and almost fell when I was rescued by my brother who came to see me off. Had I not been held by him, I am afraid, the fall would have proved fatal for me today.

In the interest of the safety of passengers and to avert similar danger to others, I deem it my responsibility to draw the attention of the concerned through your columns seeking initiation of immediate corrective measures at Mysuru junction Platform No.1. I hope the authorities would prioritise the passengers' safety and act swiftly.

Revamp Traffic Advisory Committee

Sir,

Often I read in newspapers that certain fatal accidents kill the two-wheeler rider or the pillion for not wearing helmet or poor quality helmet.

I wonder, why the Traffic Police and media are insisting only on wearing of helmets? Why don't the authorities educate the people as to how to drive in a single road, ring road in six lanes, double track roads etc.

In most of these accidents, one can see the age group normally in the range of 18 to 28 to 30 years. This is the age group where the children/youth with hot blood are having various dreams, visions and being shattered for their impatient move or reckless driving.

Police should arrange frequent camps at all colleges/institutions through powerpoint presentations, how to drive on these roads, road sense, giving way to heavy vehicles, obeying traffic signals, following lane discipline, parking culture, avoiding no entry roads, negotiating road humps, right turns at prime junctions etc.

The Traffic Advisory Committee may be upgraded and revamped with traffic experts to counsel and educate these masses. Just imagine the plight of parents whose children die in ghastly accidents?

'Clean Cauvery' initiative launched at Srirangapatna

Dr. Bhanuprakash Sharma, who launched the 'Clean Cauvery' initiative in Srirangapatna, is seen overseeing the clean up process.

Srirangapatna, June 4- With an intention of cleaning River Cauvery, the lifeline of crores of people along the Cauvery basin, 'Clean Cauvery' initiative began near Wellesley Bridge across Cauvery in Srirangapatna yesterday. Vedabrahma Dr. Bhanuprakash Sharma launched the initiative in front of Anjaneyaswamy Temple at Cauvery North bridge in the town.

More than 300 persons, representing different organisations such as Srirangapatna Nagarika Hitarakshana Samiti, Abhinav Bharath, Chaitanya Pade, Meenugarara Sangha, TMC members and others took part in the initiative.

Two JCB machines and two tractors were engaged in the river cleaning up operations, which included removal of algae, plants, weeds etc.

Taking part in the initiative, farmer activist and BJP leader K.S. Nanjundegowda said that it was disappointing to note that educated persons travelling from Mysuru to Bengaluru and vice-versa in vehicles, stop their vehicles on the Cauvery bridge and throw wastes into the river. Noting that dumping of garbage and wastes into the river was one of the main reasons for the river getting polluted, he said that another reason is sewage water from towns and cities along the river basin being let into the river.

He urged the State Government to come up with a viable proposal for cleaning up Cauvery River in the better interest of humankind.

Lokesh, head of Abhinav Bharath, one of the organisation in the forefront of the campaign, said that the persons taking part in the campaign have been divided into four groups — West Cauvery, South Cauvery, North Cauvery and East Cauvery — with export swimmers accompanying each group.

Claiming that yesterday's drive was a huge success, he said that more organisations are expected to join the campaign. Pointing out that the campaign has targeted cleaning up Cauvery from Bathing Ghat in the town up to Ganjam's Nimishamba Temple, Lokesh appealed the members of the public to join hands with them for this noble cause, which is aimed at protecting the environment.

International Day of Yoga on June 21

1,100 participate in first practice session at Mysore Palace

- Two more sessions on June 10 and 17
- City had entered Guinness World Records last year

Mysuru, June 4 (MTY&NNN)- Amidst uncertainty and doubt that this year's International Day of Yoga (IDY) on June 21 will not be held in the Yoga capital of the world, Mysuru, but in Dehradun, the capital of Uttarakhand, more than 1,000 people gathered at the Mysore Palace to practice yoga asanas, yesterday morning.

Last year during the third IDY, Mysuru had the distinction of breaking the record and entering the Guinness World Records with 55,506 yoga enthusiasts (a single largest gathering at one place) participating at the 139 acre Mysore Race Course.

The District Administration, however, is going ahead with its preparations for this year's celebrations and as a prelude nearly 1,100 yoga enthusiasts participated in the mini practice session.

The session was organised by Department of AYUSH, SPYSS, Patanjali Organisation, Mysuru Yoga Federation and Mysuru Sports Foundation.

The participants performed different asanas and sent a message that they were preparing for IDY. The participants arrived at the venue as early as 6 am in the numbing cold. However, the public was not aware of this practice session. Only a few yoga shaalas were informed orally about the session. The organisers were happy that in spite of this, a large number of yoga enthusiasts had come.

The session began with a prayer for one minute and later for four minutes, the 17 asanas required to be performed to loosen the limbs were performed.

After this, for 25 minutes various types of asanas like tadasana, vrikshasana, pada hastasana, ardha chakrasana, trikonasana, samadandasana, vakrasana, makarasana, ardha ushtrasana, shashankasana, uttana mandukasana, vajrasana, sarala bhujangasana, shalbhasana, ardha halasana, pavana muktasana, shavasana and another 19 asanas were performed.

After this, for another 14 minutes kapalabathi, naadishodhana pranayama, sheethali pranayama, brahmari pranayama and meditation were performed to end the first practice session.

Jackfruits dominate streets of Mysuru

A jackfruit vendor seen doing business on the busy M.G. Road in city.

By V. Shourabh

Jackfruit is one of the most preferred fruits consumed by Mysureans during the summer season. Several carts line up on various streets of the city, where jackfruits are sold like hot cakes. This fruit is generally eaten as a snack, or sometimes forms an integral part of desserts.

Jackfruits can be found in several different shapes and sizes. The fruit boasts of its natural sweetening taste and nectary syrup, which is an all-time favourite for the people. The fruit which grows profusely in Karnataka is popularly known as 'Halasinahannu' in Kannada.

A walk down the street on M.G. Road will surprise you as a pile of jackfruits are stacked on the edge of the road giving customers a sweet tooth and a craving to relish the fruit.

On M.G. Road (behind Dasara Exhibition Grounds), a group of jackfruit sellers have a stack of jackfruits ranging from the size of a fist to that of a car tyre, all piled up to attract the customers. People throng their stalls to grab an entire jackfruit as they ferry it along with them to their homes or stop by to have a quick energising bite.

Speaking to Star of Mysore, one of the sellers, Prasad, said, "People of Mysuru love jackfruits. They start coming to our stalls right from 5 am in the morning. So, we have to get up early and set up the store. We are about ten people and we handle this business here. The season of jackfruit begins in February and goes on till mid-August. It is available during off season also, but the sweetness of the fruit drops in that period. I'm from Rammanahalli and a few of them are from K.R. Pet and Srirangapatna. The fruits are grown in those villages and nearby field. We get the fruits from there and sell it over here. We have two kinds of customers — one who likes to buy the entire fruit back home and the other who prefers that the fruit be cut and given. So, we have options to satisfy both the type of customers. We wind up the day at about 8 pm. This fruit also has numerous health benefits and is a key part of an individual's diet."

A woman is seen peeling jackfruits for sale in a push-cart on Bannimantap Road.

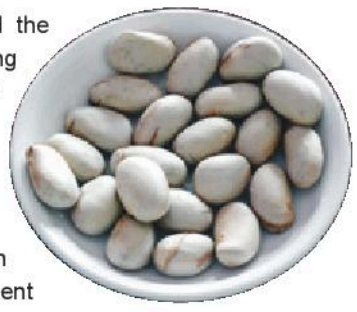
Jackfruit is soft and is a digestible bulb with fructose and sucrose that energises and replenishes the body. Being rich in iron, potassium and magnesium, they aid in lowering blood pressure and control the heart rate. They prevent anaemia, ulcers and asthma and is an antioxidant.

"People who pass by are tempted to have a bite and stop by and taste the jackfruits. Some customers come and buy the fruit in bulk from us. We make a decent business by selling jackfruit. The young and the old both love this fruit. In about 20 days from now, the 'Chandra Halasinahannu' (orange coloured jackfruit) will be available. That is the sweetest jackfruit, which brings in reminiscences of nectar in the mouth. The orangish colour also attracts the eyes of the customers. But this variety is available only for a short duration compared to the yellow variety," said Prasad.

One of the customers Abhimanyu, who bought a huge fruit said, "This fruit stands on top along with mango. If Mango is the King of Fruits, Jackfruit is the Queen of Fruits. I still remember my childhood, when my dad used to get a huge jackfruit and we used to finish the entire fruit for lunch or dinner. The peeling of the fruits was the most difficult part with our hands and the floor getting sticky. But it was still worth the pain to earn those sweet fruits. I make sure that I come here every year to buy the jackfruit and take it home. As the cutting of the fruit has a procedure that needs to be followed, I have to take the responsibility to peel off the tiny fruit bulbs from the huge sticky fruit and then my family jumps in to taste those delicious fruit bulbs."

The fragrance of this delicious tropical fruit draws the attention of people passing by and this fruit is an attention magnet that forces them to succumb to its divine taste. Jackfruits are on sale at the Mela being held at Curzon Park in city.

Benefits of jackfruit seeds



While most people discard the jackfruit seeds after munching on to the fleshy part, they are unaware of the remarkable health benefits of the seeds. Those seeds are tasty, rich in vitamin and act as antimicrobial. They prevent indigestion and also aid in the development of bone strength and muscles.

On being asked about the use of jackfruit seeds, another seller Prashanth said, "These seeds are edible too. The seeds can be used to make curry and can be also consumed as a snack if you roast it. Generally, people use the seeds along with aloo (potato) and fry it. Many people are not aware about it. But one who has consumed it, will know its taste. Some people boil and eat it while some make curry or chutney from it."

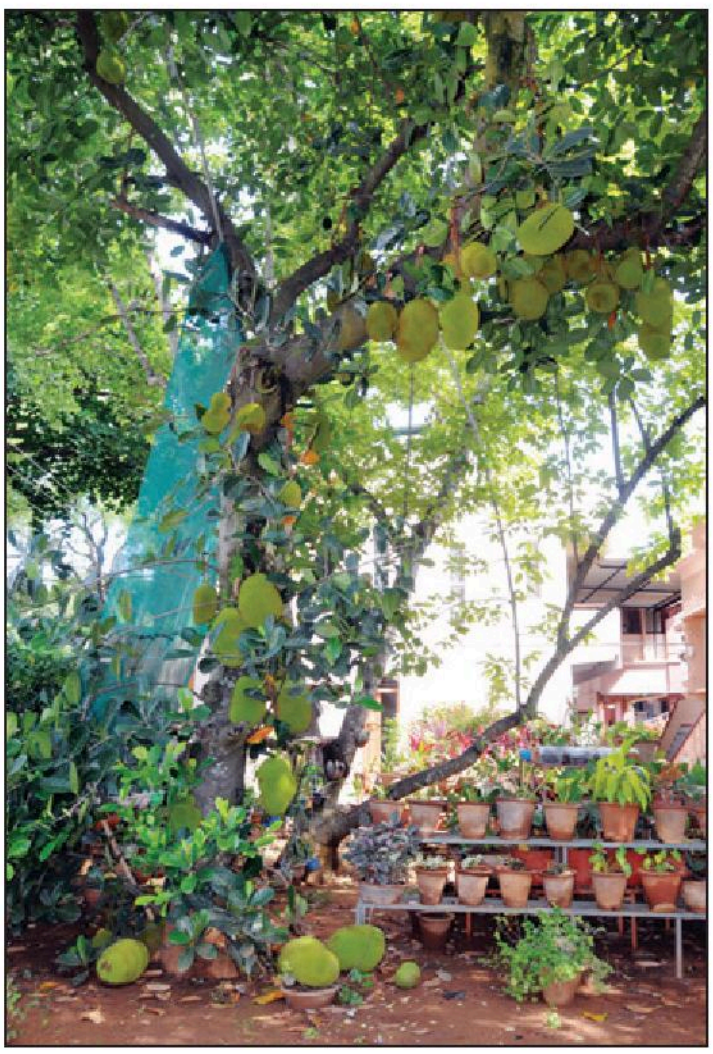
The jack of fruits on tree trunks

Kuvempu's house & Sri Ramakrishna Ashrama play host to unique jackfruit trees



At Sri Ramakrishna Ashrama in Yadavagiri.

Mysuru, June 4- While jackfruits usually grow on the extended branches of the tree, making it difficult for fruit lovers even to reach the branch unless they use a ladder to climb up the tree, there are some trees where fruits are grown on the trunk itself. The trunk bears the fruits from the bottom making it easy for people to pick and savour them once ripe.

In Mysuru too, we have two such trees and it is not very difficult to trace them. One is located at Sri Ramakrishna Ashrama on KRS Road in Yadavagiri and the other is at 'Udayaravi,' the residence of Rashtrakavi Kuvempu in V.V. Mohalla. Incidentally, the State Government is planning to convert Udayaravi into a Museum.

So, now to the question why does the fruit grow from tree trunk? What makes this possible?

Here is a scientific explanation

The jackfruit tree bears fruits in the trunks or near the base of older branches from where the female flowers emerge in the first place. Given that jackfruit is the heaviest among the tree borne fruits, reaching up to 35 kg in weight, it is possible that the trees bear them in the trunk or older branches that are strong enough to hold the fruit.

Another example is the durian tree, which is commonly found in south-east Asia. Durian fruits can weigh up to 4 kgs and emerge in large clusters from the trunk. Both jackfruit and durian have thick pedicels that hold these large fruits. Jackfruit trees bear male and female flowers in separate flower-heads.

The male flowers appear in new growth among the leaves above the female flowers. Female flowers appear on short, stout twigs emerging from the base of the trunk or large branches; sometimes even from the base of the tree under the soil.

Durian flowers appear as a cluster and have bisexual flowers borne on short, thick twigs. The stigma (female part) matures much earlier than the anther bearing stamens (male part) enabling cross-pollination.

Sunday picnic turns tragic

Relatives and colleagues paying their last respects to the departed Scientist at CFTRI Quarters.

About the incident: Yesterday afternoon, Dr. Somashekar, his wife and daughter along with his friend and his (Vinay) daughter, after reaching Chunchanakatte Falls, ventured into the waters to play. After a few minutes, the water level rose resulting in increase in water force which led to Dr. Somashekar getting washed away.

Why the water-level rose: Sources said that the water level increased due to surge in water flow as the Kolkata-based Graphite India Ltd. Mini Hydel Plant of 18 MW (9 MW x 2) capacity at Chunchanakatte discharged water from the plant in the upper stream, which took the picnickers off guard. It was also raining heavily yesterday since 2.30 pm, sources added.

As the water level increased, there was strong current too. Dr. Somashekar and his family members, who were sitting on the rocks in the middle, began to move towards the banks and were finding it difficult and shouted for help. Some localites, who were present there, gave them a saree to hold on and told them to reach the banks safely. As Dr. Somashekar's wife and daughter managed to reach the banks, Somashekar, who lost the grip of the saree, slipped and was washed away.

Not aware of the siren: Though the staff of the Hydel Plant switched on the siren to alert people downstream that water is being released, it was known only to the people living in the surroundings but tourists, who visit Chunchanakatte are unaware of the siren and usually mistook it to be that of a factory.

Though there is a warning board telling about the siren, most of the tourists do not bother to look at the sign board, a villager said and added that the sound of the siren is muffled with the sound of water and cannot be heard properly. Meanwhile, Vinay said that they did not hear the sound of the siren and added that he was shocked by the incident.

No adequate Police staff in the outpost: Sources said that there is no adequate staff in the Police Outpost in Chunchanakatte and there are no security personnel deployed near the Falls to warn tourists about the siren.

Sources also said that there are only two Police personnel deployed at the outpost and if one of them takes leave, the outpost is left with only one staff.

Need for safety measure: With no safety or any precautionary measures in place, there has been increase in the number of deaths at the Falls frequented by tourists in the weekends. Despite the deaths, the District Administration or the Tourism Department have not bothered to take any precautionary measures, alleged the villagers.

About three months ago, two tourists had met their watery graves in the Falls and now, a Scientist has lost his life, the villagers said and urged the authorities concerned to avert such incidents in future.

Body fished out today morning: As the operation to fish out the body was stalled in the evening due to bad light, the Police along with Fire and Emergency Services personnel continued the operation early this morning. The body was retrieved at about 7.30 am and shifted to K.R. Nagar General Hospital for post-mortem. K.R. Nagar Police have registered a case in this regard.

Body brought to Mysuru: After the post-mortem, the body of Dr. Somashekar was handed over to his parents and relatives. The body was brought to CFTRI Quarters at M.G. Halli, opposite to Chandrakala Hospital on Kalidasa Road at about 12.45 pm. His wife and daughter had reached Mysuru yesterday night itself.

Arrangements were made by the CFTRI staff to keep his body in front of his Quarters at No. 51, Block No. 8, for people to pay their last respects. CFTRI Chief Scientist Dr. R. Subramanian, HoD of Biochemistry Bhaskaran, senior scientists Dr. Balaji Prakash, Dr. Manilal and others paid their last respects.

The body of Dr. Somashekar was taken to Bengaluru at about 3 pm where the last rites would be performed today evening, according to family sources.

Stills from the video of the incident as local people try to rescue Dr. Somashekar.

Building violators beware !

All buildings that were sanctioned Plan Approval in 2002 are under scanner. "To levy fine, we will compare the Approved Plan of any building and compare it with the CR. We will then take into account the extent of violations and levy fine after physical verification," Jagadeesha said.

Survey of properties is underway and out of the 65 wards, only 20 percent is left. The survey work has been carried out by the Respective Revenue Inspectors and Assistant Revenue Inspectors.

Even those owners who have properties without the CR have to pay double penalty if there are violations. If the actual tax computed is Rs. 1,000, till now a building without CR had to pay a fine of Rs. 2,000. Now since the penalty is doubled, the property owner has to pay Rs. 3,000.

But many property owners have questioned the MCC move to levy double penalty from property owners who do not have the CR for their properties. "The MCC has not been issuing CR since many years and how come it is now levying double penalty for non-possession of CR," questioned a resident.

"Buildings in those layouts which were earlier part of MUDA and have been handed over to the MCC now do not have CR. How come the MCC is levying penalty for non-possession of CR," asked another resident. MCC officials said that a CR is issued only if the deviation in the building plan was up to 5 percent of the sanctioned plan.

Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

Accredited Master Feng Shui Consultant

Healthcare Settings

A visit to a Hospital or Clinic would make most people a bit uncomfortable and the feeling of being in an alien place greeted by people in white, wall colours painted white and the smell of the heavy fumigation adds to the woes.

Adapting Feng Shui, one could make the place brighter and more comfortable to the patients and the visitors. In certain parts of the world, especially in UK and Canada, many Hospitals have adapted interiors different from the normal Hospital set up and Feng Shui techniques have further enhanced the feel of the place and the energy flow has been maintained quite balanced.

Designed to be functional, hospitals and clinics often have florescent lighting, all-white walls, metal furniture, and built-in desks and bookcases. As a result, healthcare settings can feel cold and impersonal, contributing to a patient's level of anxiety and discomfort.

Over the years it has been noticed that patients, families, and even medical staff appear calm and relaxed in settings that incorporate the principles of Feng Shui. Healthcare providers can modify the healthcare environments using Feng Shui principles. By making simple and often inexpensive changes, clinicians can create environments in which people feel comfortable communicating with one another.

Lighting: Most healthcare settings use florescent lights that function by flickering on and off up to 60 times per second. While this is too rapid for the eye to see, this flicker is noticed on a subliminal level and can cause fatigue. To offset this effect, add lamps that use incandescent bulbs. Or let in natural sunlight by opening window shades and blinds.

Colour: Medical settings tend to be monochromatic. Clinicians often wear white uniforms or lab coats and work in rooms with white or off-white walls. All-white environments such as these can create a sense of low energy. To offset this feeling, think of ways to introduce more colour. Consider wearing uniforms that have patterns, or add pins or scarves to brighten up white lab coats. As appropriate, suggest that your facility use wallpaper borders or decorative accents to add colour to treatment areas and public spaces.

Sound: Healthcare settings can be noisy places with frequent overhead announcements, numerous hallway conversations, and equipment that are wheeled from one space to another. To offset these institutional noises, speak slowly and use a soft tone of voice. Create a sense of privacy by playing soothing music or relaxation tapes, filtering out intrusive background sounds.

Living things: Plants and animals often help people feel calm. While these may be banned in healthcare settings due to concerns about contaminants or allergies, consider using high-quality silk plants as a way to introduce a feeling of living things to the environment. Aquariums are the best to soothe nerves and make the place pleasant.

Furniture arrangement: Many healthcare facilities have large open spaces, high ceilings, and long corridors. Use furniture and decorations to create the feeling of smaller and more intimate spaces. This can be done, for example, by using moveable bookcases or hanging star decals on the ceiling.

Clutter: There is often a lot of clutter in healthcare settings, both in treatment areas and patients' rooms. This clutter can be distracting and drag down the energy in a room. To make spaces feel more comfortable, make sure that all visible items are genuinely useful and truly loved.

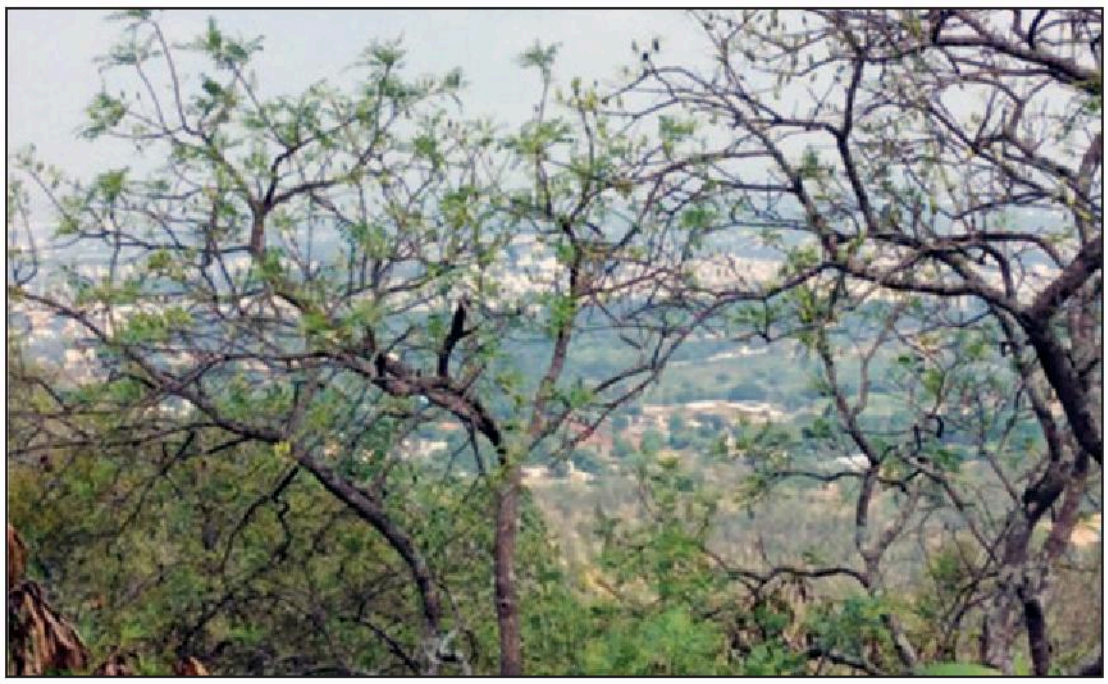
Greening Ch. Hill



According to published studies by scholars, Chamundi Hill is home to hundreds of species of plants and birds.

By Dr. K.A. Kushalapa

Mysureans are fortunate to have a large area of (4,000 hectares) Reserve Forest within the city limits with a variety of plants and trees providing shelter to many birds, animals and even fish in downstream lakes. The temperature of the city is also 3 to 5 degree centigrade less than compared to adjoining city areas.

One of the most important components of the city's green space is Chamundi Hill that virtually guards the city from rising temperature. Unfortunately, of late there is indiscriminate development of the Hill that should ideally be left for the forest cover to expand and flourish.

Coming to the Hill per se, an area on the top has been declared as notified area where unplanned, haphazard construction have resulted in the accumulation and dumping of waste, short supply of water, degrading natural forest ecosystems around.

The temple authorities demand more forest lands on top in the name of development. Under the Forest Conservation Act, 1980, no forest area shall be released without the prior approval of Government of India (Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change), for non-forestry purposes. This implies that no more forest land on top of the Hill should be made available for any non-forestry purposes in the interest of conservation and preservation of unique and valuable forest ecosystems of this Hill.

The development plan of Chamundi Hill should take into account all the above issues and restrict the plan to basic minimum and essential requirement. The plan should cover both Reserve Forest as well as highly disturbed notified areas. There should not be any guest houses and other facilities to stay on top overnight as the city centre is hardly 12 kms away.

The number of vehicles going up should be restricted enforcing only bus journeys from below by parking their vehicles in the parking lot as is being done during festive occasions. A well-planned ropeway at an appropriate location would also reduce vehicle movements, provided its objectives are clear and established not for a joy-ride but to help and reduce traffic movement and congestion.

This will also reduce the journey time of devotees as well as fuel requirement of vehicles. People might have seen in Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur, etc., where cable cars move above tall evergreen forests without any backup roads along the ropeway. What is actually required is to keep the Reserve Forest of Chamundi Hill green and clean by growing more trees, providing protection and conservation of soil and plant bio-diversity.

A management and development plan should be prepared covering the Hill, both notified areas and Reserve Forests, and finalised after a public hearing or a seminar. Greening the Hill should be given priority in the plan and there is a good scope to do so with available modern technologies.

To start with, all Eucalyptus trees should be uprooted as it draws more subsoil water to grow faster. It was planted during 1960s without much thought and made the area more degraded. It is only good for swamps and higher rainfall areas of Australia and is a gross mismatch here. It will not allow any native plants of dry deciduous forest type to come up thus making the area more barren.

Therefore, all the eucalyptus trees should be uprooted during monsoon. In order to replenish the area with grass and other suitable species quickly, the latest technology of aerial seeding and periodical aerial spraying of water should be taken up for which this Hill is ideally located. We may hire a suitably modified helicopter for aerial seeding and spraying water.

Aerial seeding could be done during July and repeated during September. The seeds selected should be of native species and must be treated in the nursery, coated with pesticides, fertilisers and pre-germinated. Aerial spraying of water could be done immediately and then periodically. The ground watchers should go round the area and see that the seeds are properly buried in the soil.

Mysuru is a well-known heritage centre and a popular tourist destination. In fact, this is a tourist-junction from where we can take off to Ooty, Wayanad, Hassan, Chikkamagalur, Kodagu, BRT and MM Hills. This city needs urgent attention from the tourist's point of view also and greening the famous Chamundi Temple areas and Hill should get the highest priority. Several NGOs are already active and struggling to keep the city clean and green. Kudos to Mysore Grahakara Parishat (MGP) that has started ambitious "Greening Mysuru" project with more members and citizens involved.

A plan can be formulated where companies can devote a part of funds under Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and contribute in greening the Hill. A small but active committee chaired by DCF, Mysuru Forest Division, would keep the project going with the help of members of local NGOs, other government departments, experts and industrialists.

Plea to clear garbage behind MPVL at Bannimantap

Garbage, which is dumped on the northern side road of Mysore Paints and Varnish Limited (MPVL) in Bannimantap Industrial Area since many days, is not cleared and is causing inconvenience to many as the wind and rain are carrying the garbage such as waste papers, empty plastic covers etc. resulting the same entering houses. Authorities concerned are urged to take steps to get the garbage cleared at the earliest.

Residents said that despite repeated pleas to the authorities concerned, no action has been taken till date. Authorities concerned are urged to take steps to construct a wall for the drain and prevent any untoward incidents in future as monsoon has set in.

Cleanliness drive in city only for award

Garbage mess: Foul smell forces people to recoil

The garbage bin on Valmiki Road is overflowing and garbage is scattered on the road. Picture right shows the appeal put up by Corporator S.B.M. Manju of the area asking the residents to dump garbage in the bin.

Mysuru, June 4 (SBD&NNN)- Every year the District Administration and Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) swings into action during the Swachh Survekshan surveys to see that the city is declared a winner. Sadly, things return to normal as the apathy and neglect continue, once the exercise is over, say the residents expressing their ire.

The city bagged the top award in the medium category in the country. Everyone including the District Administration, MCC, Brand Ambassadors, civil society and the Pourakaramikas worked hard for the award. However, within two months the garbage mess is seen in most parts of the city.

There is foul smell in the air as tonnes of garbage lie uncleared on Valmiki Road in V.V. Mohalla. The irony is that the overflowing garbage bin is very close to the Judge's Quarters and PWD Assistant Engineer's Office.

A board has been put up by Corporator S.B.M. Manju asking people not to throw the garbage on the road but put it in the garbage bin. 'Our city Mysuru is clean, beautiful, our layout will be still more beautiful, please put the garbage in the bin.' However, none of the residents are responding to his appeal.

Another place where this scene is repeated is near the compound of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar Bhavan that is coming up in Devaraja Mohalla where there is huge mound of garbage thrown every day. As soon as it is cleared in the morning, a few shopkeepers on Devaraj Urs Road litter this place again. As a result, the place is strewn with garbage throughout the day.

Apart from this, the stray cattle (there is a big menace of stray cattle on this important road) rummage through the garbage for food and hence, it lies scattered on the road. The footpaths on Krishna Vilas Road and near the Maharani's PU College compound have been converted into garbage dumps. Similar is the situation in many other places.

The plastic ban is just a slogan and even though the theme this year for World Environment Day is 'Beat Plastic Pollution,' plastic bags and other items are found thrown everywhere.

The MCC which is tasked with clearing of garbage is neglecting its duties. Added to this, the people also must be held responsible for their insensitive attitude as they carelessly throw the garbage on the road instead of in the garbage bins.

Just as it is the responsibility of the MCC, it is also the duty of the public to cooperate with the Civic Body to relentlessly maintain the cleanliness of the city, is the message that needs to be driven both to the citizens and the administration, say a few civic conscious people.

Pourakarmikas inaugurate World Environment Day celebrations

Swachhata Brand Ambassador Pramoda Devi Wadiyar skips event

Mysuru, June 4 (RKB&NNN)- The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) had organised a cleanliness drive as part of the World Environment Day in Kote Maramma Temple premises adjoining the Mysore Palace on Mysuru-Nilgiri Road here on Friday.

Pramoda Devi Wadiyar was to participate in the programme that was to begin at 7 am.

However, due to unavoidable reasons, she was unable to attend and the programme turned a damp squib. This led to the Pourakarmikas themselves inaugurating it at 8 am by cleaning the premises. Later, the students of Sri Nataraja School of Nursing joined the Pourakarmikas in the cleanliness drive.

MCC Senior Health Officers Dr. Ramachandra and Dr. Nagaraj participated in the programme but refused to touch the brooms.

Disrespect shown to Pramoda Devi Wadiyar: MCC had announced that Mysuru City Swachhata Brand Ambassador Pramoda Devi Wadiyar is going to inaugurate the cleanliness programme at 7 am on Friday at Kote Maramma Temple premises. It is said that without her permission her name was used and for this reason she refused to attend the programme.

However, when Star of Mysore spoke to Pramoda Devi Wadiyar, she said that she came to know of the programme only last evening. Though she thought of participating, she decided not to attend, as she was not feeling well.

MLA Nagendra promises Rs.10 lakh grant for Basava Bhavan

'Sharana Sangama' and Endowment Lecture Programme

Mysuru Tarpaulins Proprietor Y. Veerabhadra was conferred 'Kayaka Yogi' Award and MLA L. Nagendra was felicitated by Hebbal-Vijayanagar Basava Samiti and Chamaraja Unit of Sharana Sahitya Parishat at Basava Bhavan in Vijayanagar yesterday during 'Sharana Sangama' and Endowment Lecture programme.

Mysuru, June 4 (PM&DM)- Newly elected Chamaraja BJP MLA L. Nagendra has promised Rs.10 lakh grant out of his Legislator's fund for the extension of Basava Bhavan in Vijayanagar here.

He was speaking after being felicitated at 'Sharana Sangama' and Endowment Lecture programme jointly organised by Hebbal-Vijayanagar Basava Samiti and Chamaraja Unit of Sharana Sahitya Parishat at Basava Bhavan in Vijayanagar here yesterday.

Stating that he will also look into the chances of granting more than Rs.10 lakh, Nagendra assured of speaking to the MP in this regard.

Regretting that the BJP, which secured 104 seats in the Assembly under State BJP Chief B.S. Yeddyurappa's (BSY) leadership, could not come to power, Nagendra recalled that it was former MLC Thontadarya, who was then the city BJP Chief, who promoted him in politics by giving the party ticket to contest in the MCC polls.

Pointing out that it was Yeddyurappa when as the CM had made him MUDA Chairman, Nagendra said that it was BSY who gave him the party ticket to contest from Chamaraja.

Thanking the voters for electing him in the just concluded Assembly polls, he said that he was grateful to all those who supported him.

Writer Prof. Maleyur Guruswamy, who delivered the endowment lecture on the topic 'Sathya Shuddha Kayaka' explained what the topic is all about.

Recalling his experience while taking part in a personality development camp at Ooty recently, Prof. Maleyur Guruswamy said that he noticed many participants, most of whom were elderly couple, had indulged only in taking care of their families while lacking in concentration on the topic being discussed.

Stressing on the need to understand the inner mind rather than believing in imaginary stories, he said that it was important to practice Basavanna's principle of 'Kayakave Kailasa.'

Mysuru Tarpaulins Proprietor Y. Veerabhadra was conferred 'Kayaka Yogi' Award on the occasion.

Hebbalu-Vijayanagar Basava Samiti President H.V. Basavaraj, Treasurer Lokesh, Sharana Sahitya Parishat Chamaraja Unit President M.S. Rudrappa and others were present.

WORD OF THE DAY

Sacrosanct

Pronunciation: SAK-roh-sankt

Meaning: Most sacred or holy; inviolable.

Origin: That which is sacrosanct is doubly sacred. Sacrosanct is derived from the Latin sacrosanctus, which is probably from the phrase sacro sanctus ("hallowed by a sacred rite"). The first element of this phrase, sacro, is the ablative case of sacrum ("a sacred rite") and means "by a sacred rite" (sacrum lives on in English anatomy as the name for our pelvic vertebrae—a shortening of os sacrum, which literally means "holy bone"). The second element, sanctus, is the past participle of the Latin sancire, which means "to make sacred." Sanctus has also given English the words saint, sanctimony, sanctify, and sanctuary.

Example: "Cowperwood's private office ... was a solid cherry-wood box in which he could shut himself completely—sight-proof, sound-proof. When the door was closed it was sacrosanct." — Theodore Dreiser, The Titan, 1914

THE ODD WORD

Epicaricacy

Taking pleasure in other's misfortune.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Kangaroo Court

Meaning: An unofficial court set up by a group of people, especially in a prison, trade union, or other organisation, to deal with a disagreement or with a member of the group who is considered to have broken the rules.

Origin: The phrase 'Kangaroo Court' originated in the United States during the Gold Rush of the mid-1800s, and many scholars agree that it was first used to discuss cases involving claim jumping. One 1853 example can be seen in an article by Samuel Adams Hammett titled A Stray Yankee in Texas: "By a unanimous vote, Judge G—was elected to the bench and the 'Mestang' or 'Kangaroo Court' regularly organised."

Example: The commissioner has been accused of running a 'Kangaroo court' that prioritises his personal agenda.

Jnana Yajna on 'Gita Saara'

Mysuru, June 4- Chinmaya Mission, Mysuru, has organised a week-long 'Jnana Yajna' on 'Gita Saara' (42 verses from Srimad Bhagavad Gita selected by Sri Ramana Maharshi himself) by Swami Brahmanandaji, from June 3 to 9 from 6.30 to 8 pm at Nityothsava Convention Hall in Krishnamurthypuram here.

Chinmaya Mission is a well-known international spiritual organisation with a focus on spreading the messages in the scriptures to the general public.

Gurudev Swami Chinmayanandaji dedicated his entire life to spread the knowledge present in Bhagavad Gita and the Upanishads to the common man. To achieve Gurudev's goal, the Mission organises several activities throughout the year.

Swami Brahmanandaji is a direct disciple of Gurudev and is also the regional head of the Mission in Karnataka. He travels across our country to conduct discourses. He has authored books and produced several CD's and also translated several books of Gurudev into Kannada for benefit of Kannadigas. His style of delivery is simple and laced with humour. The Bhajans he sings and the 'mukthakas' he quotes from DVG's 'Mankutimmmana Kagga' during his discourse, make a special impact on the listeners.

Beginning from June 4, everyday from 6 to 6.30 pm there will be mass chanting of Sri Vishnusahasranama stotram. This is an opportunity for the seekers of Mysuru to enjoy this spiritual treat organised in the 'Adhika Maasa' of lunar calendar and get more benefits as it is said "Adhikasya Adhikam Phalam" — meaning, the good deeds performed in "Adhika Maasa" yield more intense results in multiples.
